A Pitching Duel.

The contest was a pitching duel be-tween Mike Lynch, for the firemen, and tween Mike Lynch, for the firemen, and Romer, for the police. Each allowed seven hits, but Romer showed the better control. Sensational fielding was displayed in every inning as the teams fought on. In the second Lynch wavered for a minute and a base on balls enabled the policemen to score a run. In two innings the firemen threatened to tally, but Romer called all his skill into play and retired the side.

After Barry and Kiefer had been retired in the second inning, Fennelly, who played: brilliant all around game at second base, doubled to centre field. Lynch them passed Grothier and Harvard's Defeat Unexpected.

WHILE the detonation of Brooklyn's shattered rally smote the air at Braves Field there was another and perhaps a more terrific detonation at Soldiers Field, Cambridge. Harvard was beaten by Tufts. To appreciate fully the significance of this announcement one must remember that it is entirely in violation of precedent for Tufts to beat Harvard. Up here it is considered little short of indecent upon the part of Tufts University. They are holding meetings over the outrage, and the general feeling is that something drastic should be done about it immediately.

This news will bring some slight glee to Princeton and Yale, but it will be short-lived. The young men of Jersey and Connecticut will remember that Harvard has been a strong finisher for some little time now, also that Haughton and the Haughton system are back at

But in the meantime the offence which was committed against the Crimson is the sole topic in academic circles up here. Reprisals are called for, and it is expected that Harvard will immediately sever diplomatic relations with the offending university. Diplomats agree that an apology would only aggregate matters.

THOROUGHBREDS BEST HUNTERS, SAYS HITCHCOCK

Noted Horseman Also Has Word of Praise for Breeding Bureau.

No man in America has developed more high class steeplechasers and thoroughbred hunters than Thomas Hitchcock, and what this finished horseman has to say about the 'cross-coun try or show ring performer will be read with interest, as he is recognized as an authority in every country where the herse of quality is known.

"There is no horse in the world that is comparable to the thoroughbred as a hunter, or, as a matter of fact, for almost any purpose," said Mr. Hitchcock when seen at the offices of the Jockey Club. "You find men decrying him as being too 'hot to give satisfaction when put to any other task than racing. There never was a greater mistake. People who talk in that fashion have never had anything to do with the higher type of thoroughbred, and their experience has come from contact with culls which have been discarded because of their shortcomings.

"As a matter of fact, the thoroughbred is not as her half-head if

"As a matter of fact, the thorough-bred is not as hot as the half-bred, if the same animals are subjected to equal tasks. Put a half-bred horse in training and ask as much of him as you do of the thoroughbred and the re-sult will be surprising. The half-bred would not stand the acid test of racing and come through with a perfect dispo-sition.

Bred for 150 Years.

The thoroughbred has been bred for

"The thoroughbred has been bred for 150 years, and the cuils during all that time have been eliminated. I have had twenty-five years' experience with thoroughbreds, and during that period I have experimented with them widely. My twelve-year-old son has ridden them in the hunting field on Long Island, and another of my children, only six years of age, has ridden them in the show ring.

"They are more easily broken to harness than any other horse in the world, and illustrating this let me tell you of semething I saw S. T. Harbison do at Lexington when the thoroughbred market was at its lowest, some years ago. He bought a lot of young stallions, mares and geldings from one to three years of age, and turned them all into a hig paddock. They agreed famously, and it wasn't three weeks till those that were old enough were broken to harness and some being sold all over the country.

"The halfbred is fine, too, and we have to bring in the grade in order to secure an average size, just as in Irland they went to the cart horse to secure a bigger hunter type, but by and large the thoroughbred when he is big enough meets every requirement.

"Jolly Dixon, by Sir Dixon, out of Merry Maiden, winner of the heavy weight championship at Piping Bock, is 16.2 hands and weighs 1,460 pounds. He has stood up under ten years' hardservice. Cavalier, by Stalwart, out of a Potomac dam, weighs 1,260, while another good thoroughbred hunter in mystring is Conniston, by Yankee, out of La Sorella, that tips the scales at 1,300 pounds. Surely these are big enough for any purpose, and besides their bulk they have the quality we all admire.

"The breeding bureau of the Jockey Club is doing splendid service in standing thoroughbred sires in various parts of this state. They are really doing the work of the Federal government or what foreign countries are doing in order that they may have a sufficient number of horses of the cavalry remount type.
